Dream field at Swiss Indoors Stefanos Tsitsipas - another big name in Basel

ATP Tour 500 – EUR 2.584 million – 24 October to 1 November 2026

Stefanos Tsitsipas

Stefanos Tsitsipas adds further star power to the explosive field at the 55th edition of Swiss Indoors Basel from 24 October to 1 November 2026. The former world number three has been one of his generation's most distinguished players for years. With his attacking style and distinctive one-handed backhand, the Greek has earned a firm place among the ATP Tour's elite. His greatest successes include wins at the 2019 ATP Finals and reaching the finals of the 2021 French Open and 2023 Australian Open. Tsitsipas is now returning to St. Jakobshalle and lending the Basel field an additional shot of international appeal.

Bublik, Vacherot, Hurkacz and Davidovich Fokina

Following this year's breakout star Rafael Jódar, another new face will join the field at the high point of the Swiss tennis calendar: Alexander Bublik. With his unconventional game and strong serve, the Kazakh is one of the most spectacular players on the ATP Tour. Last year's Shanghai winner, Valentin Vacherot, and two Swiss Indoors finalists from 2023 and 2025, Hubert Hurkacz and Alejandro Davidovich Fokina, round out the illustrious field.

Pure world-class

The now confirmed top players: Ben Shelton (USA, ATP 4), Félix Auger-Aliassime (Canada, ATP 5), Arthur Fils (France, ATP 9), Taylor Fritz (USA, ATP 12), Rafael Jódar (Spain, ATP 13), Holger Rune (Denmark, PR ATP 14), Valentin Vacherot (Monaco, ATP 18), Alexander Bublik (Kazakhstan, ATP 20), Casper Ruud (Norway, ATP 21), Jiří Lehečka (Czech Republic, ATP 23), Alejandro Davidovich Fokina (Spain, ATP 26), João Fonseca (Brazil, ATP 29), Hubert Hurkacz (Poland, ATP 39), Stefanos Tsitsipas (Greece, ATP 44).

Stan Wawrinka's farewell

As we have known for some time, Stan Wawrinka (Switzerland, ATP 142) will end his career in Basel. A tribute to the three-time Grand Slam winner will take place on Super Monday (26 October), and his first-round match will be on Tuesday (27 October). Wawrinka is the first to benefit from a wildcard.

Entry list

The finalised entry list will be published in the next few days.
